

She Kills Monsters - Male Audition Monologue

1. Have you played Dungeons & Dragons before?
2. If yes, briefly describe the most epic fail that occurred during one of your adventures.
3. If you could choose any race & class in D&D, what would you play as and why?

NARRATOR: In a time before Facebook, World of Warcraft, and Massive Multiplayer Online RPG's, there once existed simply a game. Forged by the hands of nerds, crafted in the minds of geeks, and so advanced in its advanciness it would take a whole second edition to contain all its mighty geekery. And here in the land of Ohio during the year of 1995, one of the rarest types of geeks walked the earth. A Dungeon Master without fear, prejudice, or a penis. This nerd was a girl-nerd, the most uncommon form of nerd in the world and her name was Tilly Evans. But this isn't about her... This story is about her sister...

Agnes Evans grew up average. She was of average height, average weight, and average build. She had average parents and grew up in the average town of Athens, Ohio with her little sister Tilly. Though they shared the same parentage, the two girls had very little in common. Agnes being of average disposition was into more typical things such as boys, music, and popular television programs while her sister Tilly became fascinated with the dark arts- magic, gradons, and the vanquishing of pure evil. As Agnes grew and grew, she became more and more engrossed with transcending her seemingly permanent state of averageness and made one grand wish on the night of her college graduation that she would forever regret.

And so the Gods answered her wish by smiting down every single member of her family in a car crash. But this isn't the story of those tragedies. It is a story about how Agnes, the girl who never left home, finally found a way out...